Born and raised in Sydney Australia, Mrs. Elizabeth Siasoi never imagined that she would live in Savaii, and that her children will speak Samoan and she will join the women's village activities.

As the Manager of the Amoa Resort at Faga, Elizabeth who made Samoa her home ten years ago, said Savaii opened her eyes to beautiful things in life that include the culture, family and community life.

"I now live in my adopted home of Savaii, but I'm originally from Sydney Australia," said Elizabeth.

"Savaii is the place to be and everything is here. We have internet, we have organic food which is unaffordable overseas; we have fresh fish from the ocean and (Samoan) cocoa. I am now a serious cocoa drinker."

Elizabeth said she had worked in the tourism industry in Australia, and had extended her experience to the tranquil and unique settings of Amoa Resort.

"When I got here, Savaii really opened my eyes to what a beautiful place Samoa is. I was in the tourism industry in Sydney so I could see the potential here for the tourism industry to grow for its beauty and uniqueness.

"Many people asked me, that it must be hard to live in Savaii but it's quite the opposite. This is the way life should be."

The unique community life in Samoa also inspire Elizabeth more. "I learned to be a Samoan and I grew as a person. I learned from my family and neighbors on how to be a mother. I look at the most important things in life and it's not money."

Elizabeth said as a child, she had a lot of exposure to the Samoan culture from her Samoan father, in terms of family and gatherings.

"When I grew up I felt that to be happy as an adult, I want to explore more and know more about the Samoan culture.

"My dad always told us stories of Samoa that was somewhat exotic. I see Fiji and Hawaii on TV all the time I asked, hey dad is that what Samoa is like?, and he will say yes."

Elizabeth said her father's family is from Falefa village and the famous waterfall used to be his playground.

"He told me that he roamed the family land when he was a kid, and his family had mangoes and papayas. He is from Falefa so he had the waterfall as his playground and it was something that planted the seed that I always wanted to experience and come to Samoa."

Elizabeth came to Samoa in 2009, and not only that she felt in love with the culture but she also met the love of her life here, got married and have three children.

"We now have three children, and they all speak in Samoan which is amazing to my family and my father. They are learning a lot of things that they could not learn overseas.

"They are learning about respect for others, helping out their mom and dad, and have faith in their lives."

Life in Savaii can be a challenge, but like many Samoan families, Elizabeth said her family raise a pig farm, and have a taro plantation.

"A holiday to Savaii forces you to look at your own life and wonder, "what are we doing wrong."

Elizabeth was also asked about her thoughts of the COVID 19 and how it impacts the local tourism industry.

"This is an unforeseen situation and as a tourism business we are dealing day by day with the basis of how to operate. But us as business people we would rather be safe as a country.

"We support the Government with what they have done. Savaiians are the most resilient.

"Everyone when the pandemic strikes say they will go grow their own plantation and grow food for food security."

She also promoted Amoa resort for our local people to experience and enjoy its hospitality.

"We are still pretty much the Savaii that you expect, we are authentic. Our family structure is here at our village and our hotel. You don't have to go far. You walk out the door and it's there.

"If people want a bit of comfort then Amoa is here and we know that people want to know how to experience relaxation when they go on holiday and that's what we are here for."

Amoa resort have a range of accommodation and at the moment, have 15 rooms.

The resort also cater for family reunions and family gatherings, and also for customers who wants to have a meetings in Savaii.

Relief employment for RSE workers

COVID-19 transmission will remain a key priority throughout."

Meanwhile awaiting their evacuation, the New Zealand's Immigration Minister Iain Lees-Galloway this week announced employment relief for seasonal workers stranded in New Zealand According to the Press Statement, the seasonal workers will be able to continue working and supporting themselves with more flexible hours and roles.

The time-limited visa changes are:

- Stranded RSE workers will be able to work part-time (a minimum of 15 hours per week) and with no limit on roles that they can do.
- The workers will need to have an employment agreement with an RSE employer, who will need to continue to honour commitments under the RSE scheme.

- Any additional time an RSE worker spends in New Zealand will not count towards the time they would ordinarily have to spend overseas before they can return for seasonal work.

"The Government is supporting Pacific Island governments to repatriate their citizens but many are expected to remain in New Zealand for some time," elaborated Iain Lees-Galloway.

"RSE visas limit workers to specific work, which is now drying up despite the Government already supporting workers to move to new RSE employers unable to bring in migrant workers as the borders are closed."

Iain Lees-Galloway said the RSE scheme is part of New Zealand's special relationship with the Pacific.

"As a country, we have a responsibility to support these workers and their employers, whose pastoral care responsibilities include accommodation for the workers.

"I want to give employers in the horticulture and viticulture industries as much certainty as possible in uncertain times, so I have taken the decision now even though next seasons workers will only be able to enter New Zealand when it is safe to relax border restriction."

Cabinet resumes conversation to block Facebook

By: Nanai Taofiga Laveitiga Tuiletufuga

Coupled with audible public concerns registered and within the government high ranks, Cabinet has resume the conversation to temporary block the Facebook social media platform, the Prime Minister Tuilaepa Sailele Malielegaoi revealed at a press conference with members of the local media yesterday evening.

“Government has received these concerns and they are not taken lightly,” said Tuilaepa noting that he has spoken publicly in the past condemning the abusive and unregulated use of the Facebook platform to defame innocent members of the public not including high ranking government officials like himself but Cabinet Ministers and high ranking officials in both the public and private sector.

Tuilaepa’s response comes less than a week after another Samoan citizen residing in Melbourne Australia was wrongfully implicated with the Prime Minister in an alleged conspiracy plot to assassinate former Member of Parliament Laualiale-malietao Leuatea Polataivao Schmidt.

Last week Tuilaepa Sailele Malielegaoi received a Letter of Clarification from Luaiva Aiono, a Samoan based in Melbourne Australia. The letter vehemently denies a Facebook post by the OLP blogger implicating him in the alleged conspiracy plot by the Prime Minister to assassinate Member of Parliament Laualiale-malietao.

In his letter posted on his personal Facebook page and emailed to the Press Secretariat, Aiono denied the post saying that with all honesty he did not write the document that was used by OLP blog, to promote a confession made in communication with the Prime Minister to plot an assassination of the former Member of Parliament Lauali.

He added that someone had used his name and identity.

“I had no knowledge of such a thing and at no time did the PM and I communicated on such matter, refuted Aiono declaring his innocence to clear his name.

Responding to Aiono, the Prime Minister issued the following statement;

“Like myself, Luaiva Aiono is the innocent victim.

“And like many of the posts by OLP, the Government and country’s profile as an accountable, transparent and safe Samoa is again victimised by the OLP faceless group of pathological liars.

“With that said, I would like to acknowledge Aiono’s integrity and honesty in swiftly dismissing the deceitful lies. I extend my regrets to Luaiva and his family. And that said, I am not in the least surprised that OLP had handpicked this poor man to be his pawn based on his Aiono surname as I also hold the Aiono matai title. It is the act of cowards.

“This is the same M.O. used by King Faipoo and Tala Pauga to defame me and both have confessed in court admitting to their lies in their childish attempts to overthrow government.

“This also serves an audible and crystal clear notice that Government will not sit idle from investigating fake posts that will shame the reputation of innocent individuals and their family’s’ because we now have the capacity at our disposal to do so.”

The OLP page has since removed the post.

PM Tuilaepa to lead HRPP’s 2021 General Elections Campaign

If successful, it will be the HRPP’s 10th consecutive General Election victory since taking office in the early 1980s.

At a press conference yesterday afternoon, the HRPP leader acknowledged the confidence in the party and with the same token warned opponents and critics not to belittle the country’s wishes should the 2021 General Election concludes with another landslide victory for the HRPP.

“Do not insult the wishes of the country if they choose to re-elect the HRPP back into office for another term,” warns Tuilaepa.

As a count down to the General Election, the HRPP as of yesterday had registered 49 new election candidates.

The new recruits will join the 45 incumbent HRPP Members of Parliament and Cabinet Ministers for a total of 94 running flag carriers for the ruling party when Samoa goes to the polls to elect her future government and leaders for the next five years.

And there could be more as candidate’s registration will continue next week Tuesday.

From the number and menu of contenders, it is safe to conclude that the HRPP will field more than one candidate in all of the Electoral Constituency come April next year.

However while the rising numbers reflects a message of confidence, it is but just one of the factors closely scrutinized by the Party Leader and sole survivor of 10 successful consecutive general elections won by HRPP.

“Our unity has always been our strength. And this election is no exemption,” says Tuilaepa.

“For all us, we must keep in mind that HRPP’s impeccable record in meeting the needs of our people remains paramount for each individual candidate,” said Tuilaepa in an exclusive interview with Savali.

“It was only when the HRPP came into power that consolidation of parties and some normalcy was introduced in the House.

“People also stopped focusing on characters and individuals but focused instead on the programmes and policies that were introduced,” reminisced Tuilaepa.

“We consolidated this further by reforming the electoral act mandating a member who chooses to switch sides during a parliamentary term to vacate the seat and go back to the polls.

“That makes a lot of sense since that MP has reneged on a promise he or she had made to the district on which party he will join.

“But the crucial element in all this is the political stability it brought Samoa.

“Political stability is crucial to accessing foreign aid.

“Donor agencies and donor countries never give money to politically unstable governments.”

Though democracy is not perfect, Tuilaepa believes it is the best political system the world has at the moment.

“It is the most representative system we have.”

Although there is no official Political Opposition Party in Office due to the lack of numbers as dictated by Parliament’s Standing Orders, the HRPP leader remains open to strong opponents during the General Elections.

“Government is always in favor of a strong opposition party but their bad mouthing tactics to ridicule our reforms which the country is reaping the HRPPs’ fruits of hard labor is decapitating their election agenda,” continued Tuilaepa.

And based on the political coconut wires, he welcomes talks of more than one new political party in the makings targeting the 2021 General Elections.

“The more parties contesting the general elections will also vindicate Government from the slanderous and ridiculous claims that Samoa is a one party state,” the Prime Minister noted.

“In the last general elections, if you recalled there were rumors of six difference political parties promising a chance of government.

“But the HRPP maintained our composure and resolve that action speaks louder than words.

Asked by the media, if the HRPP feels threatened if more than two political parties will stand up for the general elections, Tuilaepa said that is “utter nonsense.”

“I have confidence that the country will vote on issues and not innuendoes,” he elaborated. “The philosophical justification of the HRPP is also articulated in walking the talk and delivering beneficial projects and initiatives which has country is reaping.

“This has been the propelling force behind the HRPP’s policies and successes.”

The HRPP leader also brushed aside as a non-issue the cracks in the party unity that are starting to show up.

“You’re always expected to come up against factions inside a party when it becomes too big like the HRPP,” Tuilaepa explained. “But it has not taken the HRPP spirit away – the party will continue to move along.

“On the other hand it must be remembered that Members have their own rights and if they want to break away, they have every right to do so but be prepared to face the consequences of the law.”

Registration for 2021 General Election candidates will be accepted by the Office of the Electoral Commission starting 12th October 2021 with the 23rd October as the closing date.

Remarks by Ambassador Chao Xiaoliang at the Handover Ceremony of Anti-COVID-19 Medical Supplies donated by the Chinese government to Samoa

Honorable Minister Stowers,
Chinese Medical Team Leader Dr. Wang Yonggang,
Distinguished guests, Ladies and gentlemen,

It is with great pleasure that I come to attend the Handover Ceremony of the Anti-COVID-19 Medical Supplies donated by the Chinese government to Samoa. First of all, please allow me to take this opportunity to congratulate the Government of Samoa on the effective responses to COVID-19. Thanks to your consistent efforts, Samoa remains one of few countries in the world being COVID-free until now.

The cooperation in the medical field between China and Samoa has a long history and has achieved fruitful results over the years. In the face of the unprecedented threat posed by the pandemic, China and Samoa have once again stood shoulder to shoulder. In the most trying time of China's struggle against the epidemic months ago, Samoan government and people from all walks of life voiced their firm support for China. We shall not forget, His Highness Head of State and the Honourable Prime Minister specially sent letters to President Xi Jinping, offering condolences and support on behalf of the Samoan government and people. We shall not forget, representatives of Samoan students in China delivered the healing song "Let the world filled with love" to Chinese people with beautiful piano accompaniment by Ambassador of Samoa to China. We shall not forget, the medical staff of the TTM Hospital and the students of the Confucius Institute at NUS recorded videos, chanting "Cheer up" in mandarin to root for China.

"A drop of water shall be returned with a burst of spring." This Chinese proverb's message is to repay kindness tenfold. We cherish the friendship with Samoa across the Pacific Ocean. Although there has been no confirmed case in Samoa yet, sharing the concerns of the Samoan government and people, we have exerted every effort to assist Samoa to build a solid line of defense against coronavirus threat.

First, information sharing. Guidelines on COVID-19 prevention and control were provided to MOH and TTM hospital in the first place. On March 10, China, Samoa other Pacific Island Countries held a video conference on the containment of the pandemic. Chinese Medical Team members, who have extended their serving terms voluntarily, published COVID-19 fact sheets on the newspaper and held two workshops in TTM hospital on the epidemic. Second, experience exchange. On May 13, 2020, China and Pacific Island Countries held a special meeting on COVID-19 via video link, appreciating each other's solid support. China reassured that it would continue to help the Pacific Island Countries to the best of its ability. Third, financial support and medical supplies donation. Chinese government has urgently launched a China-Pacific Island Countries Anti-epidemic Cooperation Fund, under which USD250,000 was provided to Samoa to fund its response to coronavirus. Emergency assistance including N95 respirators, disposable surgical masks, fluid-resistant isolation gowns from the Chinese government were delivered. Many local governments, businesses, non-governmental institutions and individuals in China, among which are Guangdong Provincial Government, Huizhou Municipal Government, Shanghai Construction Group and Jack Ma Foundation, have also taken action and donated supplies such as testing kits, ventilators and personal protective equipment. The Embassy will continue to work closely with Samoan side to overcome the challenges of shipping caused by flight suspension and expedite the delivery.

Just as Samoan saying "Uo i aso uma /ae uso i aso vale" goes, adversity is the touchstone of friendship. Best friends make the good times better and the hard times easier. Hand in hand, China and Samoa will emerge from the test of the COVID-19 epidemic stronger mutual trust, closer cooperation and deeper friendship.

Thank you!

Samoa achieving sustainable development targets but challenges remain says Govt. report to UN

PR - APIA, SAMOA 11th JULY 2020; – Global shocks, natural disasters and health crises are disrupting national development, affecting economic growth, and undoing hard fought development gains, says a new government report to the United Nations.

Samoa is either on track or has achieved 47 percent of the selected global and national indicators used to measure its progress on implementing the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) and the 2030 Agenda for Sustainable Development, adopted by all UN member states in 2015. This is ac-ording to the Second Voluntary National Review Report on the Implementation of the SDGs, which was presented by Deputy Prime Minister, Hon Fiamē Naomi Mata’afa this morning to the UN High-level Political Forum for Sustainable Development, based in New York.

“Renewed commitment in 2015 to an ambitious global agenda that is aligned to our Strategy for Development has helped us respond better to growing economic, social and environmental challenges,” said the Deputy Prime Minister. “The review highlights multiple achievements for Samoa despite the challenges of being a small island developing state. For example - education is compulsory and fee-free for public schools and there is universal access to primary education. There is almost universal access to clean water, sanitation, roads and electricity and less mothers are dying at childbirth. More women than men are in senior management in the public sector, more children with disabilities enrolled in schools and enhanced resilience to disasters and climate change is fully integrated across all sectors and at the community level. There is increased domestic financing and stable ODA and FDI levels.”

However, while there is progress, the report also highlights that not all are benefitting equally and many challenges remain. For example, literacy and numeracy at all educational levels are declining, premature deaths from NCDs are rising, income inequality is significant and the loss of biodiversity is worsening. There are also high levels of violence against women and children and an increase in Samoans under hardship conditions. The Deputy Prime Minister also warned that Samoa faces a rocky road in the short to medium term, with many challenges to achieving sustainable development highlighted in the report – including COVID-19, which have weakened the economy with resultant rising unemployment and income inequality.

“Samoa’s efforts to ensure everyone enjoys prosperous and fulfilling lives and that economic, social, and technological progress occurs in harmony with nature have been positive. Samoa has put a lot of effort into building financial and environmental resilience, strengthening social protection and helping vulnerable groups to address inequality, unemployment and poverty,” said Simona Marinescu, UN Resident Coordinator for Samoa the Cook Islands, Niue, and Tokelau. “However, this review reveals that progress remains fragile and that continued development cooperation with traditional and new partners is critical to Samoa’s sustainable future. The VNR will be a valuable tool in helping us to identify areas in which the United Nations could be most relevant to help accelerate the implementation of the 2030 Agenda.”

Noting the crucial role of national partnerships in delivering positive development outcomes, representatives of civil society and the private sector were part of Samoa’s national presentation and report. The Manager of Nuanua o le Alofa (NOLA) Ms. Mataafa Faatino Utumapu, touched on some of the positive progress and also called for more effective inclusion of the needs of persons with disabilities in national implementation and monitoring. The President of the Samoa Chamber of Commerce Incorporated Ms Jenny Ula- Fruean highlighted the impacts of the COVID 19 on the private sector during the presentation.

The voluntary national reviews are a central component of the follow-up and review of the 2030 Agenda, and are undertaken by national governments to track progress in implementing the Agenda and the SDGs. This is the second such review presented by Samoa to the High Level Political Forum, which is convened annually under the auspices of the UN Economic and Social Council. 46 countries are presenting their reviews with Samoa this year.
